

Experienced recovery reactions

On the first morning, when my sister came to visit me in the hospital, she brought along some volunteers from the Klang Longevity adjustment centre to help. By noon, I was surrounded by 4 brothers and sisters from the centre to provide adjustment. That was my first of many adjustments that were to come. During the adjustment session, my head felt bloated, my body hot, and my legs more numb. However, the pain subsided and I could sleep well. They attended to me twice a day, in the morning and evening until I was discharged from the hospital.

Surgery not needed

On the Fourth day, the doctor told me that my condition had improved, and found that I did not need any operation. He made for me a fiberglass cast. The interesting experience was that, I could still feel the energy even through the cast. The Adjustment sessions continued for the whole week. By then I was able to go home. But I still could not walk by myself without the aid of the wheelchair and crutches. During these trying times, my mom and sister aided in my adjustment by taking the morning shift, while Sister Betty and her colleagues offered me adjustment in the afternoon.

Pet dog injured

Coincidentally, my dog had gone three legged and needed adjustment as well. She recovered fully in two weeks, in contrary to the vet's proclamation that she would remain three-legged for life.

Health improved

My health kept improving in huge strides. By the next month, I was finally able to resume daily life without the use of a wheelchair. My fiberglass cast was replaced with a light-weight adjustable metal cast. I still needed crutches but I was sure in the next two months I will be able to walk upright again. I was right! It made me so happy to be able to take my shower by myself again. I still attend the adjustment sessions in Klang twice weekly. In 2007, I was finally fit enough to work.

Conclusion

I am truly thankful to have a beautiful supportive family that had been my pillar of strength in times of need. I appreciate the love and help so graciously given by friends and relatives. Most of all to the brothers and sisters from Klang Longevity centre who had come to help me for months, even though they barely knew me at that time. I am very grateful for all their help.

My final thanks go to Klang Longevity centre for organizing the elementary and intermediate classes conducted in Klang Hokkien Association by the wise and honorable teachers Wei and Lin from Taiwan. I believe that more than 1800 new members of Longevity received this gift of healing to help themselves as well as those in need.
